

SECURITY AND JUSTICE BEYOND STATE AND POLICE

ABOLITIONIST PERSPECTIVES ON AND FROM ROJAVA

Sunday 09.07. 11-16:00 UTC+2
Bremen University - GW2 B2880
and via Zoom

With:

Daniel Loick (Political and Social Philosopher / Abolition Beyond Borders Collective)

Nazan Üstündağ (Sociologist / Women for Peace Initiative)

Muhammad Omar (Member of the Asayîş / Rojava)

Umm Rudi (Member of a Mala Jin / Rojava)

ABOLITIONIST PERSPECTIVES...

What is abolitionism?

What (revolutionary) perspectives lie in this approach?

How can there be justice without a state?

How can there be security without police?

...ON AND FROM ROJAVA

Are there similar structures in Rojava to the police in Germany?

Are there alternatives? How does policing work in Rojava?

What role do community accountability and transformative justice play in the security and justice system in Rojava?

What approaches to abolitionism can be found in the autonomous self-government in north-eastern Syria?

JOIN US!

We will discuss these and more questions with:

Daniel Loick is professor for political and social philosophy, co-editor of "Abolitionismus - Ein Reader" and member of the "Abolition Beyond Borders Collective".

Nazan Üstündağ is a sociologist. She is a founding member of the Women for Peace Initiative and writes for example about "Self-defense As A Revolutionary Practice in Rojava"

Muhammad Omar is a member of the Asayîş in Rojava. He will talk about aspects of the security system and prisons in Rojava.

Umm Rodi has been working for 10 years at a "mala jin". She will talk about her work and aspects of community accountability and transformative justice in Rojava.

The event will be held online via Zoom as well as at the University in Bremen (GW2 B2880) and will be translated into English and Kurdish (Kurmancî).

The event is organized by
"Initiative of Mutual Studies of the Students of Rojava and Bremen" (IMS) in cooperation with the
"Institut für Ethnologie und Kulturwissenschaft" (IfEK)

Supported by
Zanîngeha Rojava / University of Rojava
AStA of Bremen University

@IMS_2022

@initiative_of_mutual_studies

Zoom:

